

ON THE SATURN I

Stephen J. Weberg
Jet Propulsion Laboratory
California Institute of Technology

The Cassini-Huygens spacecraft is less than a year from launch. A large spacecraft, it is designed to conduct a thorough investigation of the Saturn System, commencing in 2004 after a long cruise from Earth. Plans for this mission, and how the spacecraft and the mission have been designed will be described.